MONEY MATTERS President Aquino (in boring) joins the signing of the National Anthem at the start of Thursday's investment forum, billed the public-private partnership conference, in Pamp City. Mr. Aquino asked 500 foreign fund managers to pour in $1.4 billion to upgrade roads, railways and airports, while the government would provide protection from business black holes.

PRESIDENT AQUINO yesterday said that his administration would compensate investors prevented by the courts or Congress from collecting contractually agreed toll or user fees.

"If for some reason, a court decision thwarts the adjustment, the government will compensate the private concessionaire for the difference between what the toll should have been under the formula and the toll which it is actually able to collect," the President said at the opening of the public-private partnership conference in Pamp City.

Before some 500 foreign fund managers at the Makati Hotel, Mr. Aquino unveiled this landmark policy that his economic team hoped would encourage overseas businessmen's loans about their ability to secure investments.

"We are truly interested in a square deal for all, that what we share hands on, should be what matters," he said. "In this end, we will be doing it not to protect investors but to ensure that the government is not in a monetary and fiscal mess."

Herbal medicine industry shocked, saddened by loss

By Joann Aring

THE COUNTRY'S herbal medicine industry expressed shock and sadness by the tragic death of Leonides G. Vilanova, describing him as "a scholar and most respected businessman."

"It was a peaceful killing, it is never true that he was killed by auto, tale, he died in the line of duty while identifying natural places," Dr. Renato Villanueva, Incoming president of the Chamber of Herbal Industries of the Philippines, told its members.

"It's a big loss to us. May his death be given justice," he told members on the sidelines of a roundtable discussion on traditional and alternative medicine in Manila City.

Vilanova and Co was one of the top "plants" of Zamboanga in the Philippines, having devoted time and energy in identifying and scientifically classifying plant species, particularly herbs, used medicinally, in the country.

Nationals

He called Co a "missionary" for his efforts to protect the rights for Filipinos, particularly those in the government and indigenous communities, to cultivate and use proprietary rights on native medicinal herbs.

There is a rush to identify medicinal plants in the country, Vilanova says, but he, as a pioneer, has paved the way for others, taking to the traditional healers, and where they like to bring them to the attention of the government, and to the public.

That was one of Co's vision, but to protect our property rights for our medicinal plants," he explained.

The country has about 2,500 known medicinal herbs species, some of them endangered. About 120 have been found to have medicinal value, but only 10 have been thoroughly researched.

Plant to stop falling hair

Vilanova and Co were on the look-out for "natural" plant products, a plant that has been traditionally used in Manila to stop falling hair, found hair growth and with hair clarifying effects. In anti-dandruff, property has been proven better than those of "gel" and "oil."

Using Co's research, Vilanova made further studies on the market and properties of leaves. The extracts of which are now a main ingredient in shampoo and hair conditioners.

Corp. (EDC), company forest guard, Jaime S. Gual, and his brother, Jaime Barrios, were later found dead.

The survivor, Vilanova Vilanova, avoided any details of the shooting in an interview on Thursday.

Co's team was being a war zone, he said, he told them when they found a gunshot, being told in rapid succession, like an explosion, he said.

The incident was a shooting involving approximately 100 meters away from an EDC production well in Upper Mindanao, Barangay (village), he said.

But he did not see any person in the vicinity. Vilanova said he did not see who was shooting at them. Co's team was 40 meters away. Co was told he did not hear any shouting or yelling of shots from any direction, he said, indicating that the soldiers and soldiers were in battle.

He also heard a voice but could not remember what was being said.

Co's group was sleeping in the ground, Vilanova said. He said he tried to run, but he was caught by a soldier and killed a day.

Serious homicide

After several months of investigation, police officials indicated the government was in a hurry to investigate and was approaching them quickly.

Vilanova and his brother, a contractual employee with EDC's corporate responsibility department, were the only survivors of the five-member team.

The Zamboanga police would "continue," saying the investigation "will be fully resolved in time."

House probe

Millennium lawmakers asked the House to probe the killing of Co and his two companions.

"Something terrible happened in the area, and the rules of engagement were broken. There are too many cases of soldiers and police shooting and killing civilians here. We need to know what happened. We need to know what happened. We need to know what happened."

"If they are trigger happy, then they should be punished. This is a serious matter. This is a serious matter. This is a serious matter."

In May, House Resolution No. 400, the House passed a resolution to probe the case of Co and his two companions.

A few good men

Congress, they said, must investigate the case, "because that is the duty of the government. It is the duty of the government. It is the duty of the government."

"Such an investigation is necessary to be done by Congress to call attention and make recommendations to put a stop to the killing," they said.

Analogue Supt. Rafael Barrios, who filed House Resolution No. 401 asking a similar probe, said Co's death "is a big loss for the country. It is a big loss for the country. It is a big loss for the country."

SENATORS are threatening to freeze the 2011 national advertising budget for the Department of Tourism (DOT) in the face of complaints about the department's new "Pinoyan Kap Ganda" campaign strategy.

Loren Legarda said she would move for the freezing of the budget as it is considered that many senators do not agree with Tourism Secretary Albert Defensor Jr.'s decision to scrap the previous campaign slogan.

"[Legarda] should justify first that this is not just change for change's sake. But they give this thing much thought? How everyone was their research? It's such a backward slogan," Legarda said.

A major travel agency group, however, expressed support for the "Pinoyan Kap Ganda" campaign.

Marlo Poe Albano, president of the Philippine Travel Agencies Association, said the PTA "supports the decision of the DOT to come out with a new branding for the Philippines in its campaign to attract more visitors."

She said the new campaign should be given enough time to work and ceased to continue working with the government and the DOT to improve the industry "regardless of whoever is leading the department."

The new DOT slogan, intended to replace the "New Philippines" line of the previous administration, has been roundly criticized, particularly in social networks, for being clichéd and boring.

The DOT was forced to close its new website, www.newphilippines.com.ph, which is based on the new branding, after it came out that a pornography site was using similar name.

Sen. Juan Miguel Zubelli, and his relatives, including the freezing of the DOT's advertising budget, and Legarda will have to explain to the Senate during the budget deliberations next week how the department came up with the new slogan.

"It is not just a matter of slogan, we should also look at the overall theme of the tourism industry in the Philippines, the lack of infrastructure, airports and roads," Zubelli said.

Sen. Ralph Recto questioned why the DOT was targeting countries whose economies were struggling, like Europe and the US, in its campaign.

Former labor undersecretary Francisco Obiang Jr. on Facebook account, suggested that the DOT launch a global search for the best marketing slogan, saying that would give "social media enthusiasts, GFWs, and pundits the opportunity to contribute something more tangible and creative to nation building."

Some of the suggestions sent to Obiang included "Tindahan: Windows to the World of Pinoy," "Magical Islands" and "Magical Philippines."

House lawmakers are proposing tapping foreign companies. Manny Pacquiao is a campaign to offer the country as a safe destination.

Hyundai: Braver and Bolder at Top 3

The number one Korean auto brand in the country enters the 4th quarter with robust 90.4% growth

The success of Hyundai's overall strategy was well substantiated with figures that show the international growth of the company in a significant way. In the fourth quarter, the Korean company's sales, in the same time period, showed a strong increase in sales volume. In the fourth quarter, Hyundai's sales in the domestic market were 1,100,000 units, up from 1,000,000 units in the third quarter. Too far to know the factual details

THE LETTER of Gazi Polat, president of the Theoretical Pedagogues of Medical Sciences Association of Brazil or ABPAM (Brazilian Society, 11/12/2013) caught my attention, not least because it was about the Missing-42, but especially because it originated from a far-off country like Brazil had the temerity to make comments that were not only inaccurate but also abusive.

Non-inclusion by DOJ of foreign experts in list of witnesses 'disappointing'

WJG.2007.14734 is editorial on the 2007 Chinese trial explosion was very interesting but somewhat narrow and could have explored the local situation.

The editorial, wrongly or unwittingly, did not mention the findings of the bone spurs from the Argentina, the United States and Israel wherever in the knee are by x-ray inspection, and collectively examined from fragments. The bone spurs from all three local countries—and this was repeated by local papers—that the explosion was an industrial accident, not war-related by Israelis.

There are reports from clients, mostly small and very regional and concrete contractors, and they are high-pressure hard salesmen, and so would not have wanted to leave their findings to foster any position in business group. Their findings were in stark contrast to the so-called health survey paid by an investment group, who previously announced in favor of EN gas, and that the explosion was caused by

I really disagree with Fisher. You would be happy to believe totally trusted agents, let me ask you: where do you find them? It is also unfair to officials because regular salaries to the Armed Forces of the Philippines, in this case it is to be even the "cost" of the last one out the more. We should not jump to conclusions at once because all of us are "tired people" in different ways. Let's not be too kind to our problems. While we are not a part of the group's concern for the fundamental rights of the Mirong-4, we are requesting them to exercise more prudence before making statements that are not based on the hard knowledge.

without the paid experts going to the blue site. She came up with her finding by long distance, from the comfort of her home around Niagara.

I was disappointed to find out that the agents from Australia, the United States and Israel who came here to conduct their own separate investigations, are not on the list of witnesses assembled by the ad hoc Australian Security Intelligence Unit. Their accounts likely differ from mine, and it would be easy to coordinate with them as to which of which of these foreign countries' agencies/underlings have to assemble the smoking guns. The justice department may also receive copies of the findings, for a too-patient business sector.

The initiative of the foreign experts and the one based in Singapore would serve to demonstrate that the arrangements will not be a one-off, one that would require some groups from a crisis not tied to the economy.

DODGING work near Hagalluna Bridge, Hualai City is search of the broken oil pipeline, which was badly damaged Nov. 1

Puzzling silence from leaking oil pipe operators, users

IF PIPULIN is anything that it looks like, it is a pipe. It is the main line for the Philippine Industrial Corporation (PIC), operator of the pipeline system that transports Chevron and Shell products from Bataan to Panabitan, or finally, when that is impossible, to the coast of Luzon. The pipeline has been the source of the oil that keeps the lights on in the West. Over one million barrels of oil are pumped through it every day.

The FPGC pipeline, now 40 years old, may be heart of much new discovery as we use its modern technological offshoots. Different types of molecules have since been isolated and implemented into proteins that inhibit, i.e., just plain say "no!" building the line, "in the bank," as another metaphor. But I am sure that as the work from the FPGC community and others continues, we will find that the most exciting work is done not through the most common technology, as done not through the most common pipeline mode.

This methodology differs from the usual hours of physician and essentially takes into account data supplied by their field in at treatment and pumping-station facilities—in fact, only if not heavily diked around as generators, flares, and storage tanks of liquids to affect the behavior of the products being transported through the pipeline. Thus, emergency shut-down with remote start and pre-detonation is considered. And so, I will leave industry to the EPCC engineers who need an alternative, for example, ultrasonics, induction or operating pressure that would have enabled them to at least surpass the technique of leak to shut-out.

Reeling the above, there is one other—i.e. last, relatively minor, consideration—way to detect or suppress a pipeline leak in the course of volume measurement. I think, given the massive volume of oil that has been continuously recovered for several months from the crude-oil-went-bustment, it is downright incredible that neither Chevron nor Shell appears to have reexamined its crude-oil-pipeline-leak-test beyond the initial

Wall collapses, traps 15 in homes

Rescued residents fear worse yet to come

By Henry C. Carvajal

FIFTEEN persons, including a baby, were trapped in their homes before they were saved by responding marines when a 30-meter-high wall that separated a hollow blocks factory from the homes of the victims collapsed yesterday morning in Quezon City.

Barangay Apostolic Councilor Stephen Magallanes mentioned that he heard his wife, who was on the other side of the fence, to warn him of being forced into the emergency road concrete fence surrounding the property of a business man in Marikina City.

"We had already filed a complaint in the barangay about the fence, but the owner continues to ignore us," Magallanes said. "What happened today was a case of a disaster waiting to happen."

Falling rocks

According to a resident of the area, Egenio Tanglay, huge concrete slabs, followed by several steel cages, and truck tires and old drums fell on their house at around 10 a.m. on Wednesday in Barangay Apostolic. "We first heard the sound of falling stones, followed by crashing rocks," he said.

An 11-year-old daughter of one of Tanglay's friends was taken out of the rubble by rescuers an hour later. The girl, who has yet to be identified, was buried up to her neck in fallen debris.

Tanglay said the 11-year-old was brought to a physician at the Quezon City General Hospital for treatment.

He added that it was his girl, then on her way to school, who had alerted him about the sound of falling rocks and warned them of the imminent danger.

"We were trapped because concrete slabs blocked the only entrance of our house," Tanglay said.

The barangay council said it took at least 10 minutes before all those trapped inside their homes were rescued.

"We have to undertake the rescue efforts slowly because the still standing concrete fence had been damaged and any sudden move could bring the entire structure down," he said.

Danger signs

Tanglay said the fence was for years actually tilted to the right but last year the danger sign posted by monitoring department of ground and steel and other materials used in construction before blocks started to fall.

"Nobody was listening to the police department to stop (the) dangerous situation as it was, pure negligence on the part of the government," he said. "The ground was already cracked up against the wall. After I talked to the police, the workers were ordered, but they just kept going on with it," Tanglay said.

Efforts to get the side of the fence removed failed.

SAVED IN TIME

These dogs were on their way to Marikina City before they were rescued just in time by the Philippine Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals from a crueler fate in the city of dog meat. The group said there were 73 dogs in the batch.

'Botcha' buyers warned

By John M. Arevalo

THE QUEZON CITY government yesterday warned consumers about processed meat products they buy from the markets with the publication of a "botcha" (cheat) alert during the approaching Christmas holidays.

In a press conference yesterday city administrator Dr. Ana Maria Cabal said some meat dealers have resorted to using less meat in their meat products.

"Some botcha dealers and vendors are cheating now. They used the meat for processing, and it comes back as longganisa (longganisa) or baka. The consumer is unaware that the meat is not safe to eat," she said yesterday.

The Quezon City government, through its consumer office, has seized some 18 tons of the bot meat since September, Cabal said.

"We remind our consumers to buy processed meat products that are already explicated (labeled), and use the authorized but cheap ones sold at their markets," she added.

She called on the National Meat Inspection Service to be strict in regulating meat processing plants since the botcha is not used in processed meat products.

Early this month, the city government ordered the closure of these markets in Marikina for allowing the sale of "botcha meat" sold by its vendors.

The three markets—LGC, Cloverland and Florimor—were given until the end of November to comply with all the requirements prescribed by the city government, or face suspension of their business permits by January 2011.

Noting the requirements that need to be submitted and complied with by Nov. 30 are business clearance, sanitary permit, fire sanitary inspection

Drug charges filed in court vs Manila bar owner

By Juanmari L. Andrada

DRUG charges were filed yesterday in a Manila regional trial court against a club owner who allegedly offered his patrons alcohol and illegal drugs, including the dangerous drug called ecstasy, cocaine and shabu.

Five cases for violation of Sections 11 and 12 of Republic Act 9165, or the Comprehensive Dangerous Drugs Act of 2008, are possession of dangerous drugs, one filed against Stephen Igo, who also goes by the alias "Dough

"Big Co," and "Stephen Igo," the owner of Forever Bar and Galleo on Arcadio Street, Marikina in Manila.

Igo was arrested in a Nov. 8 raid at the club conducted by operations of the National Bureau of Investigation, Bureau, Arroyo and Intervention Division (NBI-IBID) and Anti-Drug Task Force (ATF).

Conducted during the raid were 968 bottles of Ecstasy, 181.75 grams of cocaine, three packets of shabu, and a transparent plastic bag with remains of considerably, a dangerous drug.

Chief assistant prosecutor Ramon Garcia did not recommend bail for Igo on the charges of possession of cocaine and of carrying but granted a bail of P120,000 each for the cases filed against Igo for possession of shabu, ganabawick, and illegal drug, pangamamala, including a violation of section 11, a digital weighing scale and a syringe/needle.

The joint affidavit of arrest submitted by the NBI stating Igo was arrested when they conducted the raid around 11:30 a.m. was not issued by Manila RTC Judge Jose Reyes at around 9 p.m. of Nov. 8.

When Igo was arrested, he was in the club. They immediately proceeded to Section 11 on the second floor of the club. Igo was in the club when the club was raided, but he refused to open, and found the clubowner hiding behind the wall.

A search of the club yielded 181.75 grams of Ecstasy, 181.75 grams of cocaine, a quantity of white powdery substance, pangamamala for drug use, as well as several firearms, ammunition and a handgun.

Study rebuts US worries on immigrant workers

NEW YORK—The growing immigrant population on Long Island has made a disproportionately large contribution to the region's economy, with immigrants employed across the economy and more than half of the immigrant labor force holding white-collar jobs, according to a study released on Wednesday.

But contrary to a widespread perception on Long Island, the study said, the expansion of the immigrant work force—both in total and illegal—has resulted in less American-born workers.

"The analysis finds very little basis for the frequently voiced concerns that immigrants are displacing US-born workers," the report, which was based on census data and conducted by the Fiscal Policy Institute, an independent research organization in New York, said. "As immigrants have come to play an increasingly important role in the Long Island economy," the study said, "they have for the most part been readily absorbed into the labor market."

The growth in Long Island's immigrant population has prompted a counterargument in some areas and state capitals, particularly in Suffolk County, where anti-immigrant sentiment has occasionally led to violence, including the 2008 killing of Massimo Lomon, an Italian-born immigrant.

The authors of the report warned that the persistence of an anti-immigrant climate could offset the state's economy.

In a volatile political climate, Long Island features, prolitical and temperamental leaders should be clearly aware of the small positive role immigrants have played in the local economy," said the study, which analyzed data in peak years of the business cycle: 1990, 2000 and 2007.

But the researchers also said that the benefits of Long Island's overall economy had not been shared equally. While unemployment levels decreased or at least remained largely the same for most sectors of the population from 1990 to 2007, the report said, one group of American-born residents—black, white and non-white—did worse with no more than a high school education suffered an increase in joblessness, to 7.8 percent from 6.2 percent, while a spike of 3.2 percent in 2008.

The report told history about that immigration, like the loss of manufacturing jobs to the region and the high rate of unemployment among black men, may have affected black unemployment. Still, the authors said, the expanding employment structure for lower-educated black men is a sign of rising living standards for them for income and education.

By comparison, unemployment rates among American-born women were either stable or fell, between the years of 2000 and 2007, with significant drops among Hispanic and black women, the study said. For the broad population of American-born men, unemployment rates generally stayed the same.

A spokesman for the Institute for American Immigration before, an advocacy group in Washington that calls for reducing levels of immigration, said he was troubled by the report.

"It acknowledges that the wage suppression of African-Americans—they're not a democracy," said the spokesman, Rob Stein. "Immigration policy needs to make sure an equilibrium between supply and demand for jobs, and not have one group feel it."

The impact of immigration on low-wage American workers, he said, is probably more than the study reports because it looked at data from before the current recession. Stein said the study had failed to consider the issue of illegal immigrants, including undocumented workers sent to other countries and drawn on public services and benefits.

From 1990 to 2007, Long Island's immigrant population grew by 1.5 million, to almost 440,000 from about 275,000, the report said. During that period, the growth of the American-born population did not keep pace, as the immigrant share of the world population also increased, to 14 percent from 11 percent.

The researchers also found that during those two decades, immigrants' share of overall economic output on Long Island rose, to 19 percent from 11 percent, even though their share of the state's population was less than 10 percent. The American-born population grew by 1.5 million from about 275,000, the report said.

Palin: I can beat Obama for presidency

WASHINGTON—

South Dakota Gov. Michele Bachmann said she would beat Barack Obama if she were to seek the White House in 2012.

In an excerpt of an ABC News interview released on Wednesday, the 2010 Republican vice-presidential runner-up said she is considering a presidential run. When asked directly if she thought she could defeat Democratic Obama, the former Alaska governor replied, "I believe so."

An Associated Press-GOP poll this month found Palin as the most promising of the potential 2012 Republican presidential candidates. The poll says 46 percent of Americans view her favorably while 49 percent unfavorably. Five percent said they know enough about her to form an opinion.

By asking voters who she would choose to serve as Republican or Republican-leaning Independent, 79 percent favor her favorably.

Military group claims takeover of Madagascar

ANTANANARIVO, MADAGASCAR—A group of military officers revolted in Madagascar's capital city on Wednesday in a move seen here as a call for keeping a coup under control. It is unclear whether the group is serious or just a show of force.

But in the capital, a group of officers who seized power with military backing said they supported a coup. The officers said they had seized the country's capital and were in control of the country. They said they had seized the country's capital and were in control of the country.

Palin, speaking to reporters outside the station in the capital where he had said his intention was, said the majority of the military are behind him and he had not heard of defections from a handful of people.

"They're threatened you with death if I don't step down," Palin said. "I'm not afraid of them."

His prime minister, Andry Rajoelina, said he was not involved in the takeover.

Palin said he would not support the coup, but would support the military and the people. He said he would support the military and the people.

Antananarivo, who had been backed by the military to take power, said he would support the military and the people.

The military has reportedly moved to police in the island, undermining democracy.

The people should remain calm and help maintain the peace," Rajoelina said in a statement. He said he would support the military and the people.

MAY WE ASK FOR YOUR UNDERSTANDING

Pilipinas Shell Petroleum Corporation (PSPC) respectfully requests your understanding for the temporary closures and product run-outs in our retail stations in Metro Manila and parts of Luzon. The continued shutdown of the First Philippine Industrial Corporation (FPIC) pipeline, which transports PSPC's petroleum products from our Batangas refinery to our Pandacan depot in Manila has severely constrained our ability to keep all our stations supplied.

In response, PSPC has undertaken various contingency measures to supply fuel to Metro Manila and parts of Luzon. These include, among others, ship to ship product transfers off Manila Bay, redeployment of barges and lorries, and long haul road transportation from our depots in Poro, La Union and Tabangao, Batangas. Government, both local and national, e.g. Department of Energy, Department of Public Works and Highways, Department of Transportation and Communication, Metro Manila Development Authority, Batangas and Makati, have given PSPC invaluable support in removing constraints that affect the back-up arrangements, thereby cushioning the impact of the pipeline shutdown on the public.

However, due to significant logistical difficulties, including road traffic, river tide restrictions and jetty congestion issues, PSPC continues to experience a backlog in deliveries resulting to the said temporary site closures and product run-outs in our retail stations.

We truly regret this situation, and again, we ask for your generous understanding.

We continue to exert our best efforts, working with concerned parties so we can completely restore the continued, safe and reliable service to all our customers.

We will provide updates on the situation. For any customer queries, please contact: (02) 878-8888 or email feedbackandissues-ph@shell.com.

Germany girds for 'Mumbai-style' attack

GERMANY DEPLOYED heavily armed police officers and bomb-sniffing dogs to train stations, airports and key landmarks on Wednesday as a new picture emerged of the terrorist threat that had already raised security levels in Britain and France.

In a heavily edited news conference in Berlin, the country's interior minister, Thomas de Maizière, said the government had "concrete indications of a series of attacks planned for the end of November," and German, Pakistani and its officials offered similar accounts of intelligence that pointed to imminent attacks by terrorists trained in Pakistan or Afghanistan.

The officials said that American military, French allies in those countries had killed some of the plotter and disrupted the plan, but that others were at large and might still strike.

In Washington, a US counterterrorism official denied the intelligence behind a meeting held in October in Amsterdam, traveling in Europe. He said that about 25 fighters affiliated with al-Qaida, organized into cells of three to five members, had been plotting coordinated attacks in Britain, France and Germany. Since then, the official said, about 10 of the fighters have been killed or captured, most of them in drone strikes in Pakistan. He spoke on condition of anonymity because his comments involved security sources.

A Pakistani official, who also spoke on the condition that he mention no names, said drone strikes in September and October were believed to have killed European recruits already involved in various plots, possibly including attacks in Germany and Britain. But he said several such plots were believed to be alive.

France has been on high alert for several weeks, deploying nearly 5,000 extra members of the military and the police have to protect sites deemed vulnerable. First people were alerted in France on Monday changes last week. Officials said one of those had spent time in Afghanistan and the officials had allowed to travel to Pakistan. The officials also said one of the suspects had been in contact to an international plot against the leaders of the Grand Mosque of Mecca.

A highly visible German law enforcement effort said that reports had been increasing in the months that nearly might be heading to Germany for al-Qaida or other in other countries.

"The situation has developed over the past weeks and months," the official said, at an evening news conference. "There were no messages about any day. The number of messages increased and concentrated in Germany."

But, he said, the warnings included none of the specifics of the threat that allowed the authorities in Britain and France to intercept powerful bomber hidden in an airport stopped from flying last week.

"In general, the messages are dangerous, and the sources are difficult to interpret," the official said. "It was a subtle warning of subversion, and because of this, the information developed that something is about to happen."

According to one European intelligence official, who also spoke on condition of anonymity, more attacks might be in place. The official said that "within the last six weeks there had been some discussion or contact in Pakistan" who said as much, though they did not know where or when a strike was planned.

The Ministry's declaration on Wednesday that "the security situation in Germany has become more serious," and the decision to put on a state of force on the airports, again raised a significant risk to security. New York Times News Service

COURTROOM: Showing down: Terrorism. Ahmad Ghailani in court before Judge Lewis. Right on Nov. 15 in New York.

US jury clears ex-Guantanamo inmate of most terror charges

NEW YORK—A Guantánamo inmate accused in the 2002 bombings of two US embassies was cleared of seven charges on Wednesday but could still face life in prison on others tied to the first offense and of a former Guantanamo Bay inmate.

A jury in New York federal court returned the verdicts after five days of deliberations from finding Ahmad Ghailani not guilty on all but seven of 24 charges.

He was found guilty only of conspiracy to destroy US property, although the verdict is a maximum of at least 20 years and up to life in prison, sentencing was set for Jan. 25.

The trial of Ghailani, a 40-year-old Pakistani, had been a legal war of attrition for a lot of others: Ghailani's plea to stay down the sentence from a life sentence to 30 years in the military base in Guantanamo Bay, Cuba, and move inmates into the civilian justice system.

Opponents have questioned the ability to provide security in such cases, while others say that detainees who have been deprived of all rights are problematic to prosecute in the same way as ordinary suspects.

During the trial week, Ghailani's prosecution team in a telephone phone with Ghailani's defense team prepared the trial. Ghailani's defense team prepared the trial. Ghailani's defense team prepared the trial.

San Miguel to sell $3B in shares in 2011

By Daniel Sison

PUBLICLY LISTED San Miguel Corp. will raise up to $3 billion from the equities market early next year by selling existing shares presently held by the diversified conglomerate.

Report pushes up stock price to 20-year high

In an interview, San Miguel president Ramon A. Sison said there "is no need" to raise more funds by issuing shares. F100 and F200 stocks, given the company's existing and future business prospects.

The company's pushed up the stock price to a 20-year high, ending at P258 per share yesterday on the Philippine Stock Exchange.

San Miguel's share price has risen by a total of 41 percent over the last month due to optimism over its new business and operations even in these tough times.

Ang said the company would be used to fund the conglomerate's ongoing expansion in the power and infrastructure sectors. "We can do this as early as the first quarter of 2011," he said in the address of the government's Infrastructure Summit in Pasig City yesterday. "The market climate is growing."

Market may still post new record gains

By Dan-C. Domingo

THE PHILIPPINE stock market will test the maximum to reach new heights and peaks. It has the 5,000 level as its main focus for next year as it continues to recover from the 2009 crash.

Paul Joseph Garcia, chief executive officer of BGC Investment Management, which manages the country's largest locally based wealth about P7 billion, pointed out in a briefing that the current outlook is the most bearish in the market since the 2009 crash.

The Philippines is a market to expect a "boom year" given the existence of high economic growth, strong economic growth and all these low interest rates.

If the Asian infrastructure investment (AI) program in infrastructure, this could provide an extra boost to growth over the next several years.

At current price levels, the local market is trading on an average price to earnings (P/E) ratio of 10, which is very low.

"So, there's still room for growth," he explained.

A P/E ratio of 10 means that for every peso, the market is trading at 10 times the value of the company.

"We're basically looking at a 10-15 percent increase in the P/E ratio for 2011," Garcia said. However, this figure was subject to change as the market moves.

Arya Residences: Green Where It Matters Most

For Arya Residences, being a "green" means more than just landscaping. This is because ArthaLand believes it takes more than just a garden feature to be called a true eco-friendly residence.

• The Four Green Measures U.S. Green Building Council's (USGBC) certification. Apart from being a U.S. Green Building Council (USGBC) Member, ArthaLand is setting the bar at a higher level with its flagship project, Arya Residences. It is the country's first and only residential development meeting LEED Gold certification (LEED is the standard by which green buildings are measured, and the guidelines for certification are based on a wide range of sustainable practices from energy efficiency to sustainable use of energy).

Sustainable Practices Employed in the Arya Residences Design

- Water Efficiency
 Installation of a water-saving system to reduce water consumption. This includes low-flow toilets, showerheads, and faucets.
- Energy Efficiency
 Installation of energy-efficient lighting, appliances, and HVAC systems. This includes LED lighting, Energy Star appliances, and high-efficiency HVAC units.
- Indoor Air Quality
 Installation of low-VOC (Volatile Organic Compounds) paints, adhesives, and finishes to improve indoor air quality.
- Material Efficiency
 Use of recycled and sustainable materials in construction, such as recycled steel, bamboo, and FSC-certified wood.

A Green Investment That's Already Paying Off

By going for LEED certification, Arya Residences is setting a new standard for high-end residential development in the Philippines. This is because the sustainable practices used in Arya Residences have helped to reduce the building's carbon footprint, which is a key factor in reducing the building's operating costs.

The Place and the People

These two amenities, together with the other features, will make Arya Residences a truly sustainable and eco-friendly community.

A Sustainable Community Where Green Matters

BSP lowers inflation forecast for 2010 to 3.6%

Regulator cites strong peso, keeps interest rates steady

By Michelle R. Rotte

THE RESERVE BANK of the Philippines has lowered its inflation forecast for 2010 to 3.6%, citing a host of positive factors including improving supply conditions and falling prices.

For 2010, the inflation forecast was reduced from 3.8 to 3.6 percent. Next year, inflation is expected to average at 2.33 percent from 2.95, while the forecast for 2012 was slashed from 2.53 to 2.30 percent.

These adjustments are still within the official inflation target set by the economic team. The target is between 3.5 and 4.5 percent for this year, and 3 to 5 percent for the next two years.

Due to the strong peso, inflation projections, the BSP decided to keep its policy rate at its current level during the policy meeting held last Wednesday.

"The Monetary Board's decision was based on its assessment that the inflation remains manageable, given domestic economic conditions," BSP Governor Amado T. Soriano said in a conference after the Monetary Board's meeting.

The policy rate has remained at 4 percent for overnight bank lending and 4 percent for overnight lending, both of which are historic lows.

The BSP has been the same since July last year. The rate was brought down through a series of rate cuts from December 2008 to the start of the global economic crisis.

Policyholders said low rates on rates would help spur demand for banks' loans, which are now fast consumption and investment.

The move was consistent with the move of other central banks, which likely lowered their respective economies by encouraging lending.

But central banks, however, have already raised their rates due to fears of inflation.

Reserve bank said that keeping interest rates too low for too long has a tendency to spark demand and thus could accelerate services prices of commodities and prices of foreign imports.

But the BSP said that in the case of the Philippines, the increase in demand was being complemented by increases in supply, so in a weak, prices are proving modest, they explained.

BSP officials said the rising supply was due to rising demand in commodities.

Soriano has noted that the BSP would keep rates steady at least for the rest of the year.

He said that despite the fact that the economy has already rebounded this year from last year's recession, the interest rate environment could remain benign due to favorable supply conditions.

In the first semester, the economy grew by 7.4 percent, much faster than the 6.2 percent recorded last year.

The economy's growth last year, although mostly less than the previous year, is disencouraged, especially, which fell into recession last year.

CONSTRUCTIVE HAVE given a signifier after the government decided to push back the implementation of the fare hike for the Light Rail Transit (LRT) and Metro Rail Transit (MRT) from 2010 to 2011.

Due to time constraints, the Department of Transportation and Communications (DOTC) and it would not be able to approve a fare hike for the Metro Manila commuter line before the end of the year.

The government originally wanted the fare hike to be implemented last October.

"Market for 2010 implementation of the fare hike for the first quarter of 2010. It's not sure we have a fare hike," DOTC Secretary General "Pong" de Jesus said.

Speaking to reporters at the address of the Public Private Partnership (PPP) conference on Thursday, de Jesus said the DOTC was studying the impact the fare hike would have on the state's economy, but also on the riding public.

The government earlier said the fare hike would range between P50 and P70, higher than the current P25 being charged for every P30.

The real cost of a trip is about P30.

The new rates are not far off from the amount commuters pay when riding on covered bus stations.

de Jesus said the DOTC was studying the impact of the fare hike on commuters and the economy. "We have said."

Globe Negostar for SMEs at The 9th Filipino Franchise Show 2010

Globe presented the Negostar Fair at the recently concluded 9th Filipino Franchise Show 2010 held at the World Trade Center in Pasay City. Spearheaded by its Globe Business unit, the Negostar Fair brings the latest tools and solutions that provide cost-efficient and reliable connections for Small and Medium-sized Enterprises (SMEs).

Globe Business has a strong partnership with the Association of Filipino Franchisors, Inc. (AFFI) that started several years back. This year, Globe Business once again supported AFFI's Filipino Franchise Show that successfully gathered around 400 participants and offered various homegrown franchises for entrepreneurs.

"To us in Globe, the entrepreneurs are the stars of their own businesses so we call them the Negostars. We are glad to be with all the Negostars and we congratulate AFFI for the successful show. AFFI's commitment to entrepreneurship in the Philippines has been an inspiration for all of us," said Henry Alagado, Head of Corporate and SME Segments at Globe Business.

He added, "We realize the importance of entrepreneurship and that reflects in our own ideals and the way we communicate, innovate, and serve our customers. We at Globe are committed to delivering the real deal, the solutions that fit the needs of SMEs so we hope to inspire the Negostars to pursue their dreams."

At the Negostar Fair during the fun and festive Filipino Franchise Show, Globe Business featured its Negostar deal exclusive offers for SMEs such as the 90 Laping Bundle, the affordable laptop and broadband deal at only P48/month, and Biz Talk, its lowest priced postpaid plan that offers unlimited calls to all Globe and TM subscribers at just P26/month.

The 9th Filipino Franchise Show 2010 featured creative, colorful booths, and many avenues for aspiring entrepreneurs and visiting negostars. Advocating the partnership spirit and showcasing proudly Filipino businesses, it was a celebration of entrepreneurship and Pinoy ingenuity. Aside from Globe Business, BPI Family Savings Bank and Entrepreneur Magazine also supported AFFI's 9th Filipino Franchise Show 2010.

"The Filipino is world-class. We are giving our countrymen a reason to be proud that they are Filipinos. Let's be the engine of growth and help more wings soar toward and take the profile of Filipino entrepreneurship," said Paolo Ting, President of AFFI.

"With the successful trade show this year, next year will be tougher for the group. We've been coming here for the past 14 years. Back then, we envisioned AFFI to be a very small group but look at us today. Let this be a challenge for the coming year and serve as an inspiration for all of us," said Retha Cuno, Chairman of AFFI.

Business confidence now at an all-time high

Optimism may translate to more job placements

By Michelle V. Sison

BUSINESS CONFIDENCE in the country improved further, with the confidence index registering a new record high of +16.6 percent, according to the fourth quarter 2007 Business Expectation Survey conducted by the central bank.

The latest confidence index was higher than the +14.6 percent recorded for the third quarter of the year, and the +22 percent point for the fourth quarter of last year.

"In the fourth quarter, businesses are bullish for various reasons, including sustained improvement in the economy, growth along demand and supply sides of businesses from overseas Filipino workers," said Dennis Trinidad, director general of the Philippine Statistics Authority.

"The index is a measure of the level of confidence of businesses in terms of their ability to generate profit and their sentiment on the economy's growth."

The index registered in the difference between the percentage of respondents who say they are optimistic against those who are pessimistic.

"Seasonal factors, particularly prospective of improved demand during the Christmas season, and optimism brought by the new administration also helped improve the confidence index," said Trinidad, director of the department of economic statistics at the central bank.

The latest survey was conducted from Oct. 1 to Nov. 9, and covered 1,524 firms of various sizes across the country. The survey is done every quarter. The first survey of its kind was conducted in 2004.

Trinidad said the favorable results of the BEI indicated that the economy would continue to grow expeditiously. This business confidence index is a measure of the level of confidence of businesses in terms of their ability to generate profit and their sentiment on the economy's growth.

The government expects the economy to grow by 5 to 6 percent this year, but economic officials said that actual growth would likely exceed the official target. This is because of the robust growth of the economy in the first half of 2007.

The growth was attributed to a loss of factors, including rising oil prices, higher interest rates, and recovery of the global market.

Businesses largely feel demand, particularly by households dependent on money sent by citizens abroad, is strong. A new increase in investments was recorded in the first half as more domestic firms infused more capital as a result of bullish sentiment on the economy.

The perceived certainty of the new administration to implement needed reforms on the economic and political fronts also helped boost business confidence, officials said. They noted that the people's trust in government is a critical factor in the following business environment.

Trans-Asia clinches Subic plant

By Gary R. Nolasco

THE EXECUTIVE committee of the Philippine and Trans-Asia Oil and Energy Development Corp. (POTEDC) approved the agreement with Oshikawa Petrochemicals Corp. for the development of the output of the 120,000 metric tons per day Subic plant.

In a declaration in the Philippine Stock Exchange, POTEDC said that under the terms of the agreement, Oshikawa Petrochemicals and Management Agreement with Trans-Asia was completed in November 2007.

The project is a joint venture between the 50% owned by Oshikawa and the 50% owned by POTEDC.

Under the agreement, Oshikawa Petrochemicals will provide the technology and equipment for the plant, while POTEDC will provide the land and infrastructure.

The plant is located in Subic Bay, Zambales, and will have a capacity of 120,000 metric tons per day. It is expected to start operations in 2010.

The plant is a joint venture between the 50%

Public-Private Partnership against smuggling

By Ernesto M. Ochoa

TODAY MORNING is the first time that we are holding an anti-smuggling summit. It is a historic event. Prior to significant about this effort is to the private sector which is winning this activity. This responds to the demand for public-private partnership (PPP).

PPP meaning

In the first PPP government and private sector, the public sector provides the infrastructure and other government needs, which we do not have government funds for. This is a reality situation. However, we should not guard against private sector death which may give the private sector too much profit at our people's expense.

There is another meaning of PPP. It is a partnership in political will and government. Private sector gives the private sector a special role when he said, "Kidding around."

Smuggling magnitude

It is the second kind of PPP that should be discussed to fight smuggling. Two years ago, we wrote about the large disparity between the report of import value of the National Bureau of Statistics (NBS) and the Bureau of Customs (BOC) on the one hand, and the significantly different Bureau of Customs (BOC) report on the other.

From 2002 to 2007, the BOC reported that other countries reported an average annual level of $50.2 billion in their reports to the Philippines. The BOC reported a similar volume of $47.4 billion. However, the BOC report of annual imports of only $12.5 billion was the first indication wrong, at it is the BOC?

There is a $34 billion difference between the report of the two agencies and BOC. If the BOC is wrong, this means a probable $34 billion in smuggled goods through smuggle or tax evasion and smuggling (e.g., under-invoicing, misclassification or misdeclaration).

New data

Recently, the United States Customs Trade Statistics Database released underreported import values for 2008 and 2009. From the top 25 reporting countries to the Philippines, which accounts for more than 90 percent of our imports, Philippines underreporting was at P15.5 billion and P14.3 billion, respectively. This is approximately the same level of disparity that took the NBS and BOC reported for 2002-2007.

UNDER-REPORTED IMPORTS USD

Country	2008	2009
China	-4,311	-4,234
Japan	-2,886	-3,035
Germany/France	-1,884	-1,648
United States	-776	-1,281
Singapore	-1,303	-1,114
Other Countries	-14,827	-15,340
Total Asia	-15,248	-16,018

Assuming 22 percent VAT and a 6 percent average tariff, this means an average government revenue loss of $2.32 billion. At P45 per dollar, this is P10.4 billion, almost double from the P20 billion DA budget for 2011. Imagine what this lost revenue could do for agricultural development and infrastructure. The table also shows which countries we should carefully watch.

Recommendations

In the light of the evidence, the fight against smuggling goes on. Government revenue at risk and jobs creation is at risk. But this has not always been the case. According to Federation of Philippine Industries (FPI), President Jose Arroyo, the only time he saw significant progress against smuggling was when there was a Cabinet Oversight Committee on Anti-Smuggling (FPI).

When two politically motivated "big fish" were caught, the GoCo was immediately abolished. A big factor in the GoCo success was the active participation of the private sector, not from the FPI and the other from the Mayors Association.

It is now time to reform such a structure. We can call it the PPP Oversight Committee on Anti-Smuggling (PPC). It should be chaired by the Justice Secretary and have as members the secretaries of agriculture, trade and industry, justice, and local government. For the private sector, there should be one representative each from agriculture and industry. Initially, this committee should meet monthly to ensure that the anti-smuggling drive is implemented with vigor and political will. This job is too important to be left in the hands of

Comments

We recommend that PDAF makes fighting smuggling a key result area for the 10th and 11th sectors. This is because there are government and industry issues that have been identified as smuggling as a key challenge to their sector growth. It is imperative that these revenues help fund the PPP fight against smuggling through the PDAF.

We need justice over more than economic issues.

Toll increase eyed for lengthened Skyway

By Paolo S. Mendoza

New Sucat off-ramp to be opened by December

THE OVERLAP of the Manila Metro Skyway is set to open a new section of the elevated toll road by the end of the month to help decongest the main artery south of the capital.

Skyway O&M Corp. officials charge Nasser, Inc., will also open to traffic. Paragon Corp. will likely be opened by late this month or early December.

The new section of road will lengthen Skyway by about 3 kilometers from the road's current end at Pinaric, Pasig.

"We're just doing the finishing touches. These are the new sections that have to be inspected by the Toll Regulatory Board (TRB) so they can give a certification of substantial completion to the project," Nasser said in an interview.

The new section is part of the Stage II extension of the Skyway. This will add 7 km more of elevated road to the current Skyway's 11.4-km, six-lane divided section. The ground-level portion from Magallanes to Alibangbang will be under Skyway O&M's concession.

It will extend the Skyway all the way to Alibangbang, Marikina, which is where the South Luzon Expressway (SLEX) begins.

Officials said the completion for the entire Stage II extension is expected by May next year. "But I think we can

Samsung introduces cutting-edge Digital Air Solutions

SUBSIDIARY Electronics Philippines Corp. (EPC) is announcing its goal of strengthening its position in the air conditioning market by expanding its latest product offerings. EPC has been applying its trademark digital technology to its products, and this commitment is reflected in the use of eco-friendly, low-carbon technology, leading to new designs.

Besides introducing a complete line-up that also incorporates the air's effects on human health, the air's effects on the environment are also a priority for the Philippines subsidiary of Samsung Electronics Co., Ltd. (Samsung). The company's commitment is to create products that are technologically superior.

Samsung's latest 10-series air conditioner, the Crystal series, features the M1-Engine. This new technology has two elements: first, the M1-Engine's compressor is a variable-speed compressor, including SERS and SERS to provide continuous flow and reduce the energy consumption. It has been proven to be the most effective

Ethanol pricing scheme eyed in lieu of tariff

By Amy K. Rowe

THE DEPARTMENT of Energy is drafting a pricing mechanism for ethanol to protect local producers and investors, as it attempts to fix a rivalry with the 20 percent import tariff being sought by stakeholders.

"We are still in discussion with the ethanol producers and the oil companies. We may have a very good compromise instead of a tariff. We may have another way of pricing that will be favorable and will be a win-win situation to both parties," said Energy Secretary Steven Chu D, Wednesday.

"The reason for the request for a 20 percent tariff for imported ethanol is a pricing strategy. We're looking at an index where producers and oil companies will use here as a benchmark for the price of ethanol in the domestic market. It's intended to encourage domestic ethanol production and to ensure it's still under discussion," he explained.

BSP raises bank loan cap to aid PPPs

By Michelle K. Rowe

THE SECURITIES and Exchange Commission has doubled the single borrower's loan (SBL) for corporate borrowers that intend to invest in public infrastructure projects, supporting the Aquino administration's push for a more active participation of private firms in developing the country's infrastructure.

Under the original SBL rule, a bank may lend a maximum of 25 percent of its total loanable funds to a single borrower. The objective of the rule is to diversify a bank's risk exposure by avoiding heavy concentration of loans to one borrower.

However, the Monetary Board of the BSP decided to relax the SBL rule to accommodate the Aquino administration's agenda of developing the country's infrastructure by encouraging more private sector investments in roads, bridges, and utilities.

Under the new rule, a bank may have a separate 25-percent lending limit for a private firm's public infrastructure investments. This means that a bank may allocate as much as 50 percent of its loanable funds to a single borrower as long as half of the loan would be used in fixed investments in public infrastructure.

SBL doubled for infra loans

The administration's measures through aid the resources of private investors are necessary to develop the country's infrastructure. This is because the government continues to struggle with a serious budget constraint, manifested in the estimated P120 billion deficit for this year.

"This relaxed SBL policy is intended to allow banks to more actively participate in the PPP program but without lending with prolonged involvement. Most of the added risk that such larger exposure may generate, banks would be required to exhaust their plan to address any resulting credit concentration risks," BSP Governor Ricardo Trillanes Jr. said in a speech during the Public Private Partnership (PPP) Forum held yesterday at Marikina Hotel in Pasig City.

During the same forum, President Benigno Aquino III addressed the limits of government, sustained loans, lenders and businesses and stressed the government's emphasis on developing infrastructure through private sector investments.

Private firms are encouraged to invest in public infrastructure projects, while lenders are urged to lend to these firms.

Trillanes said the BSP is hopeful that, with the relaxation of the SBL rule, banks would eventually become more leading in infrastructure development. He said the government's role is to create a major impetus for the country's overall competitiveness.

Foreign lending institutions, like the World Bank and the Asian Development Bank, agree that investments in infrastructure must be raised.

They said investments in public infrastructure in the Philippines is relatively small, amounting to only 2.7 percent of the country's gross domestic product. The average around Southeast Asia stands at 5 percent.

Statistics before the Philippines should increase infrastructure investments to approximately 3 and 20 percent of GDP to catch up with other emerging markets in the region.

In the latest World Competitiveness Report released earlier this year, the Philippines ranked 35th among 129 countries in terms of competitiveness. Malaysia, Thailand, and Indonesia ranked 26th, 33rd, and 44th, more competitive economies in the world, respectively.

WITH THE completion of the new Skyway segment will come a toll hike, officials said.

Toll rate bike eyed for Skyway

It's a little earlier, probably we can open the whole extension by April," he added.

Once the new section is opened, businesses said the company would ask the TRB to allow the firm to implement the original toll rate of P65 for the Skyway's elevated portion.

"Otherwise, which we started the construction for the extension, we brought down our toll to P60, but we approved rate is P65," he said. "We just want to bring the old rate back."

Skyway CMR is a subsidiary of Japanese-based City Street Manila Tollways Corp., the company which built the extension over the road.

Alfonso Pacific Investments Corp., meanwhile, has a pending proposal to build a so-called "connector road" that will link North Luzon Expressway with the Skyway and SLEX.

General Motors pulls off biggest ever US IPO

Auto firm set to raise $23.1B on back of growing investor confidence

Toyota to sell new hybrid in US, Japan

DETROIT—Toyota is planning to sell a plug-in hybrid car in the United States, Japan and Europe in 2015, targeting sales of 10,000 vehicles a year at 2 million, says $100,000, says Toyota executives, as the auto industry continues its push to keep pace with growing competition.

Toyota Motor Corp. executive vice president Takashi Kishi made the Thursday that Toyota is also planning to sell an electric vehicle in 2015 and set out just in the US at a local auto show, but in Japan and Europe too. Sales in China are also being considered, Kishi says.

But he said electric vehicles will be mainly for short commutes for some time and gasoline-electric hybrids will be the standard for years to come because drivers won't have to worry about running out of electricity on the road.

The company also has Toyota, the world's biggest automaker, is building on hybrids, which sit between a gasoline engine and an electric motor, after the success of its top-selling Prius hybrid.

A plug-in hybrid is cleaner than a regular hybrid because it travels longer as a conventional electric vehicle.

"Toyota is working on developing hybrid technology as the core technology of the future," Kishi said at a Tokyo news conference.

He said it plans to close Toyota's last factory in electric car technology although he acknowledged a final factory behind Japanese rival Nissan Motor Co. and Mitsubishi Motors Corp. is being chosen there.

News of following the lead vehicle on late this year, and Mitsubishi (MVB) is at stake on sale. "We are not behind in technology at all," he told reporters.

Reader: developing an electric car is no longer a dream.

NEW YORK—General Motors has pulled off the biggest initial public offering in US history on Wednesday, raising $23.1 billion after pricing shares at the top of the proposed range to improve its long-term value.

Including an option that would allow underwriters to sell more shares, expected to be exercised in coming days, GM looks set to raise $23.1 billion, making it the biggest initial public offering ever.

"What was that statement that and what was that? What's good for GM is good for America? Well, I think in this case, what's good for GM is good for the American taxpayer," said Andrew Cragg, chief investment officer at Atlanta-based Wells Fargo Investment Firm Inc.

The strong response to the stock sale reflects a growing confidence in GM since the GM is moving beyond its struggles. In 2009, it filed for bankruptcy in June 2009 with nearly 100,000 jobs and higher profit potential.

The government's stake in GM will drop to about 51 percent from 60 percent if all available shares are sold.

The success of the IPO is good news for the Obama administration, which faced criticism for leading out GM, and will help the government shed its "Government Motors" label.

"General Motors' IPO marks a new milestone in the resurrection of one of our most important, but the entire American auto industry," President Barack Obama said in a statement.

The stock was scheduled to begin trading sometime in the New York and Toronto exchanges, and analysts expect the shares to gain 10 to 20 percent on the first day.

Auto industry executives and analysts said the success of the IPO would boost GM's confidence in an industry that was hit hard by the credit crisis of 2008.

That is a positive sign for a range of auto-related companies, including

Asia stock markets rebound after string of losses

BANGKOK—Asian stock markets were higher yesterday as European officials sought a way to fix the migrant debt crisis and China appeared poised to avoid rising food costs with price controls that could drive growth.

Japan's Nikkei jumped 1.7 percent to 9,977.28 as shares of insurance companies led gains. The sector benefited from a Nikkei report that said MIAI Insurance Group Holdings Inc. will net a total of 200 billion yen (15.4 billion dollars) of shares in other companies.

Hong Kong's Hang Seng index added 1.4 percent to 23,330.88 as it started to rebound.

The Shanghai Composite index rose

China considering price controls to dampen inflation

0.8 percent to 2,660.41 and South Korea's KOSPI added 2.3 percent to 1,511.45.

Chinese government said Wednesday it would continue food for poor families and could introduce price controls on domestic double-digit increases in the cost of staples.

That reflected views of the anxiety in global markets that China would raise interest rates to control inflation, potentially driving its rapid economic growth.

Saying that then, chief operating officer at HSA Asia Ltd. in Hong Kong, said the strengthening of the dollar against the yen was also helping US markets in Asia.

Investors in the region like a strong dollar, because exporters in Japan and other Asian countries can sell their products more cheaply.

Indonesia's GDP-XB 200 edged up 0.9 percent to 4,649.2 while markets in Taiwan and the Philippines also gained. Singapore's Straits Times fell.

In New York on Wednesday, stocks ended mixed as concerns that Britain will need outside help to emerge in debt were coupled with a steep drop in housing construction in the United States.

Details, which is one part of the 16-point plan that says the euro, suffered Wednesday to provide additional support to Ireland beyond what it gets from the European Union or the International Monetary Fund. That raised concerns that Ireland would be unable to pay the cost of running the banks at the center of the country's financial crisis.

"Investors expect the debt crisis can be resolved," said Irving.

In the United States, construction of new houses fell 11.7 percent in October, the Commerce Department reported.

The Dow Jones Industrial average fell 15.52, or 0.1 percent, to 17,007.88. The broader S&P 500 rose 0.25, or less than 0.1 percent, to 1,178.79, and the technology-heavy Nasdaq composite index rose 0.17, or 0.2 percent, to 2,476.02.

In currencies, the dollar rose to $1.29 from $1.26 on Wednesday. In New York after coffee this month, trading near $1.29. The euro rose to $1.09 from $1.05.

Breakthrough of the Dow Jones index rose up 91 cents to $61.28 a barrel at midday Singapore time to electronic trading on the New York Mercantile Exchange. The contract fell $1.50 to settle at $60.44 on Wednesday. AP Chrysler, that are looking to tap the credit and equity markets to cutting costs, says Toyota said.

"We're not in GM for a three-month investment," said Lucio, a director at equity analyst Morgan Stanley, said at the Reuters Asia Summit. "We're not in GM because a critical element, a critical building block of the economy, has significantly exposed itself as an overpriced."

United Auto Workers president Rick Warren said the union stands to gain $1 billion from the IPO for an affiliated trust fund for union members, said GM's history workers had an interest in seeing to share profits well.

"The higher that stock price is, the more money General Motors has got to invest in production, new facilities," GM said. "We're not in GM for a three-month investment."

GM said 478 million shares at $23 each, raising $11.77 billion, as well as $4.15 billion in preferred shares, more than the recently planned $4 billion.

More than 20 percent of the IPO—more than $2 billion worth of stock—was sold to individual investors, making it the largest retail placement ever in value since the recently planned $4 billion.

The stock sale represents a big step to avoid taxpayer financing the government's $24-billion rescue of the 102-year-old company, which had fallen from blue-chip status to bailout candidate over its recent years.

GM raised $5 billion in the first nine months of 2012 and in its first five full-year profits since 2009. Earnings will also reflect $1.5 billion sales in 2012 to cover back up toward the $1.5 billion to $1.5 billion vehicle per year sales into the US in 2012.

Sales plunged to 1.4 million vehicles in 2009 and have gained a slow recovery to more 1.5 million this year.

"The automotive market is not yet at where it was, but that has driven us to recover from last year," said Lucio, GM's chief financial officer. "We're not in GM for a three-month investment."

In a road show for investors spearheaded by GM chief executive Mark Reuter and chief financial officer Rick Warren, the company has emphasized both its slumping lower end and its exposure to key growth markets like China.

One of the open questions was whether GM's China presence, state-owned SAG Motor Corp. Ltd., was able to move beyond a last-minute regulatory hurdle that threatened to place in place a 1 percent stake in GM.

Under a tentative deal, SAG had agreed to raise $200 million in $1 billion in GM funding. Chinese government approval, people with knowledge of these discussions said.

As of late on Wednesday, China's Ministry of Commerce had not approved the SAG investment, and those people familiar with the matter.

Reuters here and that overnight, with both in the 100% East and Asia are among the investors.

A study released on Wednesday by the Center for Automotive Research estimated that the Chinese government's aid to the auto industry had cost over 1 million jobs by spending the automakers from liquidation.

US officials and advisers said the GM IPO represented a validation for the Chinese government's investment.

At its IPO price, GM's value rose to about $60 billion, based on a 100 million shares. The GM IPO price will remain GM's largest stockholder for now. US officials have not announced the move until it is able to raise several years.

The stock price will need to rise by 20 percent to reach $45—about what it cost to $1.5 billion—based on a 2010 Chevy Silverado—for the government to break even on its bailout on stock sales.

At $49 per share, GM would have a market value of more than $10 billion, in some cases, to about $1.5 billion, said GM's chief financial officer.

The IPO price will need to rise by 20 percent to reach $45—about what it cost to $1.5 billion—based on a 2010 Chevy Silverado—for the government to break even on its bailout on stock sales.

Ford cuts stake in Mazda to 3.5% from 11%

Marketing, development partnership continues

TOKYO—Ford is reducing its stake in Japanese automaker Mazda to 3.5 percent from 11 percent, giving up the position of majority shareholder it has held for 31 years.

But Mazda Motor Corp. said in a statement Thursday that its partnership with Ford Motor Co. will continue to develop and marketing cars together. The announcement marks a critical shift in a long-time U.S.-Japan auto alliance that saved a money-losing Mazda from bankruptcy, and was originally envisioned as a model of a globalizing Japanese industry. Mazda did not specify which companies were buying the shares from Ford, based in Dearborn, Michigan, but it said the buyers will be companies with which it does business.

Japanese media reports have said Mazda's Japanese bank, already a major investor in Mazda, will be among the buyers as well. Japanese trading conglomerates (trading companies) are also likely to be involved.

The biggest shareholder in Hiroshima-based Mazda after Ford is Chuo Motor, an automotive parts company. It is unclear if a single Japanese company will own as much as Chuo Motor after the deal is completed. That may be satisfactory given that as many as 1.8 Japanese companies have been mentioned as potential buyers.

Consumers seen spending more on holiday gift cards

NEW YORK—Gift card spending is expected to rise during the holiday shopping season as consumers are slightly less concerned about price, according to a trade group survey released on Wednesday.

The average American will spend $145.61 on gift cards in November and December, a 4.4 percent increase over last year, according to a survey from the National Retail Federation. The recession and a sluggish economy had led shoppers to spend less on the popular gift cards, said NRF spokeswoman Kathy Cassano. Total gift card spending fell by an estimated 5 percent in 2009, and another 5 percent in 2010.

"Giving someone the price of one to meet your buying budget is a gift card," Cassano said. That trend appears to be reversing this year. Gift card spending on the cards should reach $26.76 billion for the first nine months of the year, a nearly 3 percent increase from a year ago.

More than three out of four shoppers plan to buy at least one gift card, the survey said, but those shoppers are spending more on each card.

A September 2009 survey last month found that gift cards continue to be the most popular gift, coming in at the top of consumers' wish lists for the fourth straight year.

Gift cards from department stores, Visa or Mastercard, which are not limited to a single store chain, are slightly more popular this year, with 22.4 percent of shoppers saying they would buy one compared with 22.3 percent a year ago.

Gift cards for department and outdoor stores should also see a modest uptick, while those for movies, book stores and other retailers are less in demand.

The most commonly purchased gift cards will be for department stores and online retailers.

The survey polled 8,778 consumers between November 3 and November 5, and has a margin of error of plus or minus 1 percentage point.

Irish bank woes show test flaws

How to make your makeup last

Prep your skin properly, and you needn't have to retouch afterwards

EVERY TIME I see a girl in the ladies' room reapplying makeup, I want to tell her she doesn't have to keep reapplying if she did only one simple step: to stick, if you applied your makeup well even during the day, you wouldn't have to have a "touch-up" every hour.

So for skin to achieve long-lasting good-looking makeup, it is vital to prep your skin properly. This will probably add a good five minutes to your time, but it will save you a lot of reapplying time in the bathroom, plus a lighter bag.

KNOCKOUT!

Rita Francisco-Frieta

Knock it out! If you feel like there's a greasy film on your skin, use a product with astringent in it. These are probably found in toner and refresher bottles, which the brand should help remove.

Use a toner and moisturizer. A toner is used to remove any excess makeup and to prep the skin for the next step. It's not a product you need to use every day, but it's a good idea to use it every day.

When it comes to moisturizers, place a dollop on your hands and rub them together. It's better to have too much than not enough. Apply the cream by gently tapping around your eyes.

Use liquid foundation and primer. Liquid foundation and primer are used to prep the skin for the next step. It's not a product you need to use every day, but it's a good idea to use it every day.

Here are five slightly recommended:

Chanel Beauty

Chanel Beauty products are known for their quality and elegance. They are a great choice for anyone looking for high-end makeup.

Beauty News

FRIDAY'S TREATMENT: Chanel's new fragrance is a beautiful blend of rose and vanilla. It's a perfect choice for anyone looking for a sophisticated and elegant scent.

Clean out your makeup kits today

MOST WOMEN have a pack-rat mentality especially when it comes to cosmetics. Makeup stays in our lobby kits for years because we hardly keep track of the items.

Plus, since it's been in our bags forever, we tend to notice how badly our makeup has deteriorated.

If you think your three-year-old lipstick is giving even if it smells fine, think about how dirty your makeup kit is!

Makeup can be a breeding ground for bacteria, which can lead to dermatitis. Just as important as keeping your makeup clean is regularly going to the last salon for a trim. But just how long in between is this a "trim?"

Know this and more as I answer your weekly beauty inquiries.

Makeup kit cleanup

"I want to clean out my makeup kit but I don't know when to start," reader writes. "What should I start with and when should I?"

If you are like me, and like most women I know, you probably have a big container of old makeup you don't really use.

But everyday, you end up digging in many things around without realizing how heavy your bag has become.

As we begin to liberate ourselves from carrying heavy baggage, we also have to remember to live up to our kit.

Do yourself a favor and lighten your load. There's nothing old or new you need to use anymore. If it's cracked, sticky or dirty, it needs to go.

Cleaning up your makeup kit will do you good, and your skin will thank you for it. Products are usually caused by dirty or old makeup.

Plus, for some of us, old makeup. Though we don't really use any anymore, some of the products, try to remember when you purchased them.

Unless it's properly sealed, most makeup items are a breeding ground for bacteria.

Lip gloss and mascara are the first to go, since makeup that are constantly exposed to air are more prone to dirt and bacteria.

Cosmetics never should go bad. There's one exception that really bad, but pumped to color or texture, or has changed the color or texture.

Easier said than done, I know. This is really difficult to do. When I cleaned out my makeup kit, I kept forgetting with regard that I was still going to use the makeup I was about to throw out. But it's just the cleaning out your closet...it's difficult to do at the end, but it really gives you that what you need. The same you often that still look and feel the same way as when you'd first bought them.

Keeping your makeup clean will ultimately help your makeup last longer, so remember to clean your makeup kit regularly!

Going to hair salon

Ever-growing your hair, which is why I haven't returned to my style for a few weeks now," another reader writes. "How many weeks can I last without going to the salon for a trim?"

The common mistake is NOT to go back to the salon because you are growing out your hair.

Getting regular trims is essential to keeping your hair healthy and to keep it. We can get pretty rough with our hair because of daily shampooing and styling, especially when we use harsh shampoos and conditioning or styling tools.

That's why your hair should begin to react with it, so make sure you're taking care of it.

When hair is not trimmed regularly, the damage that should remain on the top of the head. This makes it more difficult to give cuts dry, damaged hair.

According to most hair stylists, the maximum you should let your hair go between (into a tight style).

But if your hair has a style, only cut, then you may have to go back more frequently—every three to four weeks for maintenance.

Usually, if your hair is longer, it requires fewer trims to keep the hair style.

A WOMAN'S silhouette may be dominated by the jewelry she wears in the evening. Her choice of either fine jewelry with precious stones or gold-plated statement pieces speaks volumes of her taste and style, her colors and elegance.

A woman's style at night is most beguiling if downright sexy, as making it more pronounced, and taking it to the next level with bold jewelry that catches the eye.

These two moods—feminine (think swirling, flowing, oval gems) or fashion-forward (strong, bold, geometric jewelry)—would look equally revealing on the youngpinks.

For 75 years, Lancôme has epitomized contemporary beauty: a brand where excellence and fragrance, skincare and make-up go hand in hand with a truly international appeal. Less than six years after it was founded, Lancôme was already distributed in 30 countries worldwide. Today, Lancôme is the undisputed international leader in the luxury cosmetics market, and is present in 135 countries with a staff of 20,000 beauty advisors promoting this image of French excellence. As it commemorates its 75th anniversary this 2010, Lancôme has many achievements and milestones to celebrate.

Two big launches have made this year even more remarkable for Lancôme. Last October, it introduced its newest skin foundation, Teint Miracle. With the innovative Aqua-Incise Technology, Teint Miracle combines the natural skin by combining a new generation of pigments with a unique liquid light essence. This November, Lancôme again makes a breakthrough in skincare expertise. At the cutting edge of cosmetic lifting technology, it introduces the new Rénergie LIFT Volumizer, an anti-aging skincare line that sharply redefines facial contours.

Lancôme gives us many things to celebrate this holiday season. With its luxurious offerings and its irresistible holiday collection by famous fashion designer L'Wren Scott, it is surely worth pausing by on Christmas shopping sprees. What's more, they're having a special sale till November 19-21, 2010 at the Lancôme boutique and their counters in Rastan's and Mallinamad.

Lancôme is available at the Lancôme Boutique at Greenbelt 3, Rastan's Mall, Shuang-Li and Aikang, and in Mallinamad at SM Mall of Asia.

Traditional Filipino play songs given new twist in CCP concert

"Laro" concert, featuring the Philippine Symphonic Youth Band, seeks a return to our musical roots.

LAROS, Laro ng Sima, Balang... While the song plays from the older generation, food memories of growing up in more times, and times, the day will probably reach in their hearts from the youth of today.

Let's face it, the youngest generation has been raised on a steady diet of "High School Musical" and "Miley Cyrus" with a dash of the current popular culture's other music: "iDance" music.

"These songs are traditional play songs that today's youth are no longer as familiar with. Playas, Haras, Maram, Maram, and Ganshan have succeeded in making even our children's memories 'yugal' and from M. Armin."

Armin is the founder of the House of Young Musicians Development Organization (HYMO), a nonprofit group which supports young Filipino musicians and nurtures the Philippine symphonic band tradition. The bulk of their efforts is the Philippine Youth Symphonic Band (PYSB)—a group of young, talented and highly trained musicians from various regions of the Philippines.

"They are as our hometown, tested with preserving our national musical heritage through their performances. According to the Philippine Cultural Center, the number of PYSB bands, "Only 20 percent of our own POC kids learn some of the (local) songs in their only schools the rest were introduced."

"Laro Laro Sima," "Dandans," and "Balang" are just some of the songs that

KIEHL'S: Efficacious products since 1851

KIEHL'S SINCE 1851, a skincare beauty brand from New York, has found its second home in one of Manila's top destinations—SM Mall of Asia. It was in 2007 when this highly anticipated brand established its first boutique at Greenbelt 3. Several successful years later, Kiehl's can now cater to more of its loyal customers with its second boutique at SM Mall of Asia.

With efficacious formulations for the face, body, hair, men, and babies, Kiehl's has something for everyone. The brand's unique and sensitive background representing a blend of science, pharmaceutical, herbal, and medicinal knowledge developed through the generations has not only won many awards but many hearts as well. Moreover, the brand's commitment towards children, skin diseases, and AIDS causes, causes that Kiehl's always leaves a positive mark on the community to reach.

Pharmacy history

A long-standing New York institution, Kiehl's began as a typical 19th-century apothecary in 1851, supplying New Yorkers with pharmaceuticals and medicinal salves pulled from natural ingredients. Located at 13th Street and Third Avenue, the pharmacy first opened under the ownership of Mr. John Kiehl. A physician by the name of Mr. Irving Moore, a graduate of the pharmacy school at Columbia University, approached under Mr. Kiehl until 1921. Mr. Irving Moore purchased the pharmacy in that year keeping the Kiehl name, as it had already established itself as a reputable business in the community. He expanded the business into a full-service pharmacy, stocking such items as teas, herbs, lactates, lozenges, and the first ever Kiehl brand of products.

Mr. Aaron Moore, Irving's son, who also was a Columbia University graduate in pharmacology, solidified the framework for Kiehl's that exists today. Aaron grew up alongside his father at the Kiehl store; therefore, it was a natural transition when Aaron took over the Kiehl's helm in 1961, building the brand and carrying on the heritage of quality and service for which Kiehl's Pharmacy had become known.

Aaron's daughter, Janet, having been involved in Kiehl's during her entire life, assumed the position of President and CEO in 1989. The Kiehl's tradition continued under the careful guidance of Janet and her husband, Klaus Philpott, a former World Cup ski champion from Austria. Together, they remained true to the basic principles of Kiehl's and continued to develop and expand the product line. One such expansion was their development of an All-Sport line of products for sports enthusiasts inspired by Klaus' many years of experience as a world-class athlete. Another niche was filled by the development of a line of products for babies and children, which was introduced after the birth of their first daughter in 1991.

High demand for products

Over the years and through the generations, Kiehl's has continued to grow, not as a result of advertising and self-promotion, but rather, as a result of the quality of their products, their commitment to providing exemplary service, and through word-of-mouth recommendations. By the late 1990's, significant efforts were being made internally to sustain the company's growth; however, controlling this growth had become increasingly difficult to accomplish as demand for Kiehl's preparations continued to increase daily.

While grateful that there were so many requests for Kiehl products, Janet and Klaus had always vowed never to sacrifice quality for quantity. Therefore, in order to keep up with the overwhelming product demand and still maintain the high quality for which Kiehl products are known, Janet and Klaus decided that it would be best to join forces with a proven and long-recognized leader within the beauty industry who could help Kiehl's achieve this goal and thereby further serve our customers. To this end, Kiehl's Since 1851 joined forces with L'Oréal in 2000.

Kiehl's has remained dedicated to the quality of providing superior service for its valued customers. The brand is very committed to furthering the Mission of Kiehl's as established and set forth by the Moore family.

Kiehl's, as always, is a place where people have come to expect integrity, as well as very personalized service. While center changes and transformations have transpired throughout our rich history, the values that made Kiehl's such a unique and positive place from the very beginning still hold true today.

Kiehl's is available on 2/F, Main Mall, SM Mall of Asia, Pasay City (Tel. No. 659-7088) and G/F, Greenbelt 3, Makati City (Tel. No. 728-8962).

Hot shoe trends and how to score free pairs... what's not to love?

By Stef Cabal

SINCE H&M changed the name of the game in the socking/hat/belt/bag era—did I say “bag” too many times?—the “IT” bag is longer legs/feet era spotlight: now shoes share equally expensive billing with the most wanted bags. This will surely make Madonna smile happy.

This season, trend is lower leg beauty as we witness dramatic conditions of our trusty H&M footies. Sassy patterns are enjoying a revolutionary high—be it in metallic print or burnt yellow to tie deep booties. It is debatable a “trippy” mix of unexpected pairings.

Dividing energy, shoes are emphasizing to explore adornments—rings, girls, tassels, plaques, studs and gems—done in the richest and most tactile materials available, from velvet to leather to even silk and to the wildest woods. Some are beautiful enough to wear and parade at socials, while others are just plain pretty—so simply art for art’s sake. For this season, prepare to be amazed in an array of stunning statement shoes.

Fairy godmother

If you are dissatisfied of those fabulous shoe beauties, moved to search far and wide, H&M has a lovely credit card partner with Charles & Keith that will magically grant your every shoe desire.

For every approved H&M H&M MasterCard, one can get three pairs of shoes, absolutely free. (Let us repeat: three free pairs of shoes from Charles & Keith worth P1,249 for every minimum spending on their card within a specified transaction period.)

New arrivals will receive three statements, which they can order to redeem a pair of shoes from Charles & Keith worth P1,249 for every minimum spending on their card within a specified transaction period.

Each debit voucher contains a transaction period for qualified purchases on Red MasterCard, which should be presented with the charge slip dated within the specified transaction period of each date voucher.

“At H&M, we’re always on the lookout for new and exciting deals for our customers,” said Paul Gargan, H&M’s head of personal brand services. “With this promo, our customers can look forward to enjoying three more pairs of shoes from Charles & Keith, wow!”

Exotic treats

H&M Red MasterCard is the first credit card in the Philippines exclusively for women. According to Tony Grippa, president and CEO of H&M Philippines, “The H&M Red MasterCard is an extraordinary card women value and helps them achieve their goals and aspirations in life.”

Any H&M credit cardholder can present any single H&M credit card receipt worth P1,000 and up, and get P100 000-000 Paves from S&S Department Stores. Collect it charge slip worth at least P1,000 each and you get P100 000-000 Paves from S&S.

You can also get up to P2,000 S&S Gift Passes on Ayala Mall eGc when you make an H&M installment Plan (PSP) transaction with at least P2,000 monthly installment.

Prizes period will run until Dec. 25, with telephone hotline 800-800-3333 Jan. 30, 2014. S&S Gift Passes from S&S Department Stores can be enjoyed all year round until Dec. 31, 2015, while Ayala Mall eGc can valid one year from redemption date.

BEST SHOE TRENDS!

1 GEOMETRIC

Remember to always look for a futuristic silhouette with metallic materials of plastic, even rubber and leather.

4 METALLIC WEDGE

Perfect for the holiday festivities, these metallic wedges in different colors scream “Party time!”

7 LACE

Return to Old World charm and glamour with these lace and leather look-alike Christian Dior.

2 GRAPHIC SOCKS + WEDGE

Just Paul Gargan’s wedges made of patent leather in vibrant red, paired with graphic thigh-high socks, are the ultimate chic statement.

5 MIXED TEXTURES

Reveal play with mixed up patterns and textures that captivate and create edge.

8 SQUARE-TOE PUMPS

The modern shape is often with charming adornments—flowers and pearls, as seen in Miu Miu’s patent square-toe pumps.

3 TASSELS AND TUDS

Philip Lim’s open toe salmons in smoky green velvet, adorned with tassels and studs, have the right mix of luxe and edge appeal.

6 ANKLE BOOTS

Christian Dior’s boots are dark in design, buckles and banding are accented with rock-star attitude.

9 PATENT PUMPS

Patent and studs are big this season. Prada’s patent pumps look great when paired with trendy socks.

10 ANIMAL PRINT

Let your animal instinct kick in when choosing shoes, whether knee-high boots by Balenciaga or strappy evening sandals.

Logo-free Japanese cult brand opens Manila store

THE JAPANESE cult brand Maji opened its doors in the Philippines for the first time recently in quite an excited manner. The initial offerings were significantly different within days of the opening.

At the store opening in Northside High, buyers were Maji president Masashi Kawai, Maji general manager Kiyomi Miyagi, Rocco Geronimo Corp. president Dorenda Biondo, Store Specialist Inc. executive vice president Anna Huang and SDO general manager Elizabeth Quinsaban.

Guests were treated to an exclusive shopping experience and a fashion show.

Maji has always defined its path as thorough, intuitive, simplicity and relevance. Its revolutionary idea of eliminating logos and, instead, focusing on improving product design and functionality, stands in sharp contrast to the brand name, Maji. Kawai, which translates as "the legend, quality, passion," embodies the goal of

JOCE straps look sculpted print made of pony hair

INSPIRATIONAL, POWERFUL, images of women triggered my imagination. They represent for me the great Helen of Troy," said Tamara Mellon, founder and president of Jimmy Choo, about inspiration for the Autumn-Winter 2010 collection.

"Also iconic style figures such as the sultry French film actress Anouk Aimee, and a touch of Mrs. Robinson from 'The Graduate,'" shared Mellon.

The notion of female empowerment has long been a motivation of Jimmy Choo's brand. Now, the bold print of exotic skins, provocative lines, and almost an up-to-date—the Autumn-Winter 2010 collection reflects confidence, seduction, and style.

The notion of femininity and strength comes in the form of a shoe: an iconic 115-mm high-heeled, which comprised of sculptural, very urban and modern, country living, and urban style.

A new urban energy is captured in this, a strong, deeper bag is super-cool black grain leather with silver chain hardware. The popular shoe, a bold double-strap, featuring a gold-toe, gold-toe, and gold-toe, is a bold, double-strap, featuring a gold-toe, gold-toe, and gold-toe.

Jimmy Choo signature designs are evident in the Tuxedo shoe, featuring a fringe and studs. It is rich in color, the use of red, black, white, and gold. The shoe is a bold, double-strap, featuring a gold-toe, gold-toe, and gold-toe.

LIFE STYLE Fashion & Beauty

An idea made in 'Bali heaven'

Untraditional cosmetics brand has 34 colors of foundation—you can't get more individual than that

By Carmelita Sison
Contributor

AS A SELF-CONFESSED burn-lyther, makeup junkie and a lover for the occasional weed lipgloss and bedded eyes, I used to have only two Boccia products in my makeup kit: Shimmering Mineralizer and The Ultimate MURDER.

But now the brand has added a fourth: The Most Colorful Makeup with SPF 20 in the selection. Trust me, once you try it, you will be able to meet the brand's co-founder and CEO, Steven Shapiro.

Shapiro started out as a cinematographer, then after six months on the job and a longing for the outdoors, he quit and became a wine maker. He sold his business after 15 years, so he wanted to try something else, but needed the deal with delivery Marcor Williams while vacationing in Bali and also during New Year's Resolutions.

"I just said, 'You just said, I just sold my business so I don't know what I'm going to do next but you know we'll see' and when I got to Indonesia she said, 'Well, this year I'm going to get my makeup project off the ground,'" says Shapiro.

On one hand, she had the idea to create a range of foundation that didn't need mixing because she felt that one in three women was not wearing the right color foundation. (He, on the other hand, had some money, having sold his business, and had business skills that could be used in what he could do with them.)

He admits, "Of course I was skeptical I didn't know anything about makeup but by the end of the conversation I thought, here's a great business opportunity."

It was a match made in, dare I say, "Bali heaven."

Boccia makeup and much during the industry Alliance launch.

heaven."

"So we decided we'd do it together and we think back. It's really so simple as that," Shapiro adds.

So when many do from here, here is mind when creating their product?

Shapiro is quick to reply, "The person who has to mind is Rebecca. She knows what she wants and she thinks that there are only women who want what she wants."

He adds, "She is actually thinking of herself and then that just extends to somebody else."

Though it's true, as the saying goes, that there are "different women for different colors," one can't help but think that though women from different countries have very different skin tones, backgrounds and lifestyles, they're all driven by "similar psychology."

"There's just a woman in that phase who doesn't want to have beautiful complexion it's all about looking healthy," says Shapiro.

With regard to Filipino women, he says, "They're not different in that way but they do have more product preferences."

An example he cites is the case of Boccia which foundation... they don't have a product selling stock foundation in England or many other countries, but in the Philippines, women may want from a stock foundation or a cream shade because they believe that the makeup would melt from the heat.

"Others claim that, they're not any different. They are fresh looking women who just happen to be from Manila and they could just as easily be from LA, New York or Paris."

When asked what exactly brought Boccia to the Philippines, Steven says, "Because Boccia has 34 colors of foundation it's very important for us to be selling lots of different colors and when we started, we launched in the UK, which had different skin tones—white, black, Indian, Middle Eastern and so on and so forth."

This gave Boccia an early opportunity to test its products on various ethnicities. However, over a period, Boccia wanted to test it more particularly on Asian skin.

"Just before the Manila store opened we began talking to them about doing more."

Baddeo fashion show supports breast cancer victims

MANILA DESIGNER Eddie Baddeo recently presented his new collection, along with La Salle Fashion Design students, at The Manila Mall with the theme "They Feel, Love, Survive."

The students were under the supervision of their professor, fashion designer Gerry Raluyok.

Baddeo's fashion show was made of pits and about 100 models, including an hourglass figure, style, slender, slender, slender of the waist, slender of the legs and nothing for the models, inspired by the look of women. And, Photography is by Edward Joly Gueza.

The show was also in support of the fight against breast cancer. Before the show, a medical officer from St. Luke's Hospital gave some tips on how to prevent and fight

Warts removal for only P999

POPULAR AESTHETIC clinic Flawless offers a P999-discount for its face and neck wart removal. From Nov. 19 and 20, drop by our Flawless clinic and avail yourself of the special discount, part of the clinic's ninth anniversary celebration.

Warts, skin tags and other skin outgrowths are usually caused by viral infections. Although there are 10 different types of warts, the most common types are largely harmless. Even if the warts are itchy, scaly, or unsightly, treatment of warts from poison is usually not necessary.

Flawless offers electrocautery to remove warts. Electrocautery is applied on the affected area, creating a burning effect, small bursts of electric energy are used to burn off the warts.

After lesions are cleared and the tissue healed off in around a week.

Free laser pain on discount is held during the special procedure, resulting in a more pleasant skin care as needed to discontinue treatment post this completion.
